Disclaimer

The Foundation makes every effort to be careful when publishing materials on this website, but provides no guarantees whatsoever that the content of the materials published herein is complete, accurate, useful, safe, etc. Before using this website, please note that the Foundation will not be held responsible for any consequences whatsoever arising from decisions made or actions taken by visitors to the website based on the information published herein.

Before using this website, please note that the information published herein is intended to provide information about the museum operated by the Foundation, but is not intended to be all-encompassing. In addition, all information published on this website was current as of its time of publication. After the information is published on this website, the content thereof may be revised or deleted without prior notice in some cases, or the information published may become outdated in terms of describing the actual state of affairs as it exists at the present time.

Also, the URL of this website, including the top page, is subject to change without prior notice. Please note before using the website that the Foundation will not be held responsible for any consequences whatsoever of such changes, including broken links caused by changes to the URL of this website, or any other problems with website display.

Links

As a general rule, you are free to link to the top page of this website.

In principle, when linking to this page, please use the following URL. (<https://www.kyotorailwaymuseum.jp>)

When linking to this website, please refrain from displaying this website within the frame of the website from which you are linking, as this may cause visitors to such a website to misperceive the website from which you are linking as the original source of the information published on this website. Make sure to configure such links so that this website opens in a separate window.

Links to this website from the following types of websites are strictly prohibited.

- Websites that contain content created with the intention of defaming the Foundation, other companies, or third parties, or of damaging their credibility
- Websites created with the intention of infringing on the copyrights, trademarks, or other intellectual property rights of the Foundation, other companies, or third parties
- Websites that use links to this website for the purpose of conducting commercial transactions (such as providing information from this website for a fee)

The Foundation will bear no liability whatsoever for any damages or losses suffered as a result of linking to this website.

In addition, please note that, in principle, we do not accept requests to link to other websites from this website.

We do not guarantee that the information published on this website or the information accessible via this website is free from computer viruses.

The websites linked from this website are operated under the responsibility of their respective owners. We make no guarantees that the information published on such websites is complete, accurate, useful, safe, legal, etc., nor do we make any guarantees regarding the quality of the products or other items listed on such websites or the quality of the websites themselves.

The Foundation will bear no responsibility whatsoever in the event that any problems arise from the use of websites linked from this website. We ask that visitors to this website address any such problems at their own responsibility.
